... Friends broached the pilot program, they attended a Provo City Council work session and made their case.

But Provo police weren't convinced. Captain Brian Wolken presented council members with more information to consider — that other authorities, like the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Western Governors' Association, consider feral cats invasive and deadly, responsible for the destruction of bird habitats and the extinction of some species.

In more urban areas, Wolken said, TNR programs could work. "But in areas like ours, they don't work because these little predators are killing all of our wildlife."

... our disposal - whether through state law enforcement or the National Guard - to support President Trump in this vital mission," it said.

After that letter came out, Lombardo would not be pinned down on actually using the Guard this way.

"The devil's in the details," he said during a meeting with Western governors. It's "too soon to opine on the nebulous or the unknown."

After his recent State of the State address, he was asked about mass deportations again.

They are "not what I believe is an appropriate policy," Lombardo said, adding that he thought it would take the federal government "an exorbitant ...

... followed shortly thereafter by Oregon with the rollout of the SageCon Invasives Initiative . Launched in 2019 and 2021, respectively, both initiatives have already drawn in millions of dollars to help landowners reduce the threat of invasives on sagebrush rangeland. Regional partners, including the Western Governors' Association and the Western Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies , are helping share the "Defend the Core" recipe with other states and embed this approach in conservation strategies across sagebrush country.

WLFW is poised to help more states develop big-picture strategies to "Defend the Core", guided ...
